Collection LBDUI: German linguistics and literature

Collection

The collection consists of three divisions: general, linguistics and literature

In the general sections (18.08 00.01 through 00.27) you find reference works and bibliographies in the field of German linguistics and literature, such as the printed edition of Clemens Kottelwesch, Bibliographie der deutschen Sprach- und Literaturwissenschaft. The linguistics section (18.08 01 t/m 69) immediately follows the general sections and contains theoretical and applied works on the German language (including GDR) from the Old High German period onwards. Literature in the field of general linguistics is to be found in the collection LB-ATW.

The literature section (18.09) comprises over 65% of the collection and contains literary histories as well as studies about literary genres, themes and motives. You also find here a big collection primary and secondary literature from the middle ages up to the present. There are special sections for Goethe and Schiller. The focus is on the twentieth century, especially on literature in German written outside Germany, Holocaust-literature and GDR-literature. Contemporary primary literature is acquired selectively.

Works of a more general literary-theoretical nature can be found in the Literary Studies collection (LB-ALW).
