EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The purpose of Deliverable 12.5 - Final Report on Dissemination structure is to report all dissemination activities and communication tools which have been developed, implemented and applied during the project lifetime. In particular, bEUcitizen dissemination instruments and activities include:

- a dedicated project website (www.beucitizen.eu) allowing for fast and easy communication of the most relevant information and news to a wide audience;
- a newsletter, which has been issued biannually during the project to inform relevant stakeholders about the key achievements and the next activities planned;
- a number of 7 Policy Briefs have been released during the project with the aim to spread policy scenarios and recommendations;
- a series of five teaching packages for secondary school pupils in the age group of 14-16/17, which will be distributed via the project website;
- public workshops and events have also been organized with the main purpose of getting potential stakeholders directly involved in the work, but also for gathering feedback about the activities performed by the Consortium;
- representatives of the bEUcitizen Consortium have also attended external public events presenting the activities performed and the results achieved by the project.

Furthermore, the most relevant outcomes, which will be presented during the Final Conference, to be held in Brussels on 26-28 April 2017, have been collected in a book series that will be published in September 2017 by Edward Elgar Publishing.

1. INTRODUCTION

The bEUcitizen project sets out to identify, investigate, discuss and propose ways to break down the barriers to the active use of EU citizenship rights – and to improve citizens’ knowledge of them and the duties they confer.

Not only does our project provide a comparative overview and classification of the various barriers to the exercise of the rights and obligations of EU citizens in the Member States and some candidate countries; it also analyses whether and how such barriers can be overcome, and looks at which strategies and narratives can be developed to strengthen EU citizenship. The insights in our findings were developed by studying citizenship from the point of view of different disciplines: law, political science, social sciences, history, philosophy, public administration and economics.

The challenges that the EU and its citizens are facing (widening inequality; the rise of populism and Euro-skepticism; challenges to open borders and mobility; the consequences of the Brexit referendum; etc.) do not only demand an improved narrative on European citizenship but also new visions of European citizenship of the future. For the last 4 years bEUcitizen has been exploring these challenges and during the final dissemination conference in Brussels (April 2017) it can reveal how best to respond to them.

This document strongly builds on deliverable 12.1 Dissemination plan and deliverable 12.4 Dissemination strategy and aims to provide an overview of the type of activities that have been carried out and how they contributed to the overall intended impacts of the project. The following intended impacts were identified in the original project proposal for the bEUcitizen project: 1) A boost in academic research on EU citizenship, 2) Policy development, implementation and evaluation to encourage citizenship and remove barriers, and 3) Civil realisation of EU citizenship rights and responsibilities.

In deliverable 12.4 we identified three target groups, corresponding to the three points of intended impact: 1) Academic community, 2) Policy makers and 3) Young Europeans under the age of 35.

In light of the aforementioned impact and target groups, this final report provides an overview of the communication tools that have been developed and implemented to maximize the visibility of the project (Chapter 2) and of the dissemination activities organized and events attended by bEUcitizen consortium partners and individual researchers (Chapter 3). Chapter 4 describes the teaching material that will be published on the project website. Finally, Chapter 5 will take into consideration the other visual dissemination and communication tools we adopted.

2. COMMUNICATION TOOLS

A broad array of dissemination channels have been conceived and implemented to boost the visibility of the project and in order to guarantee that the most relevant project outcomes were communicated to the widest audience possible, in the most effective way.

2.1 PUBLIC WEBSITE

The Internet represents at present one of the main communication media, allowing the dissemination of any kind of information to a wide audience in a fast and accessible manner. The website represents an immediate and easy-to-access entry point which is open to all relevant stakeholders, and thus able to create awareness and interest about the project by making the most important information publicly available in a concise but exhaustive manner.

The bEUcitizen public website was created at the beginning of the project and made available at <http://www.beucitizen.eu/>.

2.1.1. STRUCTURE OF THE WEBSITE

The website contains four pages that have constantly been updated (other pages are more static in nature and did not need to be updated regularly, as “Our project” and “Our people”):

1. News: where documents published by the European Institutions, news or other information of interest both for our researchers and for the public interested in the topic have been made available. It has been applied as reference to any kind of news which has been considered relevant in the scope of the project;
2. Blog: updated with contributions written by researchers;
3. Agenda: with upcoming events organized within the Consortium or by third-parties;
4. Publications: where all the project deliverables and other publications have been uploaded or announced.

Visitors were given the possibility to leave comments through a moderated communication interface.

2.1.2 WEBSITE VISIBILITY

The effectiveness of the project website as a dissemination tool strongly depends on its visibility through the main internet search engines. Therefore, the public website has been properly designed and structured in order to ensure that it is displayed within the very first results as selected by search engines.

In order to achieve this goal, relevant terms have been embedded as meta-keywords in the programming language used to structure the website, so that they are visible and recognizable by the internet searching tools.

2.2. SOCIAL NETWORKS

BEUcitizen made also use of social networks, as Twitter and Facebook. These more recent communication channels enable to reach and to interact with the widest audience possible and to keep a fast-moving flow of project news.

The distribution of messages and their reception through the virtual community are shown by the number of likes, sharing and comments on Facebook or by the number of followers, citations and Retweets on Twitter.

As most organizations and professionals are active on Twitter, it served as an important dissemination platform through which reports and outcomes were circulated. Updates prior to and during events were spread via Twitter (for example, during the 2014 annual meeting, a hashtag (#) was used), as it enabled all stakeholders to the project to easily be updated on what is happening in the project itself.

Furthermore, Twitter was used to gather and forward interesting news on the topic of EU Citizenship. In particular, bEUcitizen was connected to the pre-existing dissemination channel of the European Commission and other European Institutions.

In addition, an insights tool developed by Facebook allowed us to monitor the post reach and the number of viewers.

2.3 NEWSLETTER

The main purpose of the newsletter was to provide up-to-date information to interested parties about the activities performed within the scope of the project, results achieved as well as upcoming events of interests.

2.3.1 STRUCTURE

The structure of the newsletter has been modified through different issues, depending on the necessity of the information to be reported in a particular issue. However, in general, the document has been structured on the basis of the following sections:

- Editorial: written by the project Coordinator, it provides a general overview of the status of the project, and an introduction to the content of the other sections;
- Latest research findings and progress: different sections dedicated to the detailed description of activities and results achieved; written by the partner responsible for the work done (i.e. the relevant WP Leader or Task Leader). The number of such sections have been dynamic in the various issues of the newsletter, depending on the topics to be reported;
- Report on past events organized by Consortium Partners;
- Agenda: section focused on presenting the main events as scheduled in the near future. This included those organized within the scope of the project, as well as external events of particular relevance.

2.3.2 PREPARATION AND DISTRIBUTION

Bi-annually an email newsletter was sent out, in June and December. The months were chosen to best fit the annual agenda of the project. By bringing out a newsletter in June, the latest news from the annual consortium meeting could be included. In December, the newsletter functioned as a closing for the year, summarizing the progress made and looking forward to the next calendar year just before the Christmas break.

A professional newsletter design has been developed in order to provide for a recognizable identity to the project. The content of the newsletter was elaborated by the coordination team, in cooperation with the Work package coordinators.

Newsletters were prepared and distributed with the support of Campaign Builder, which allows the printing of high-quality paper copies, and the conversion of the file in PDF format for the dissemination via e-mail and through the website.

Their success continuously increased, reaching and passing the number of 200 subscriptions (this numbers show that not only bEUcitizen consortium members, but also external scholars and the general public subscribed to the newsletter).

A total of 6 newsletters were published during the lifetime of the project, more precisely :

- Newsletter 1, December 2013, which presented the project, the activities performed during the first six months and reported on the kick-off meeting;
- Newsletter 2, July 2014, with a focus on the first research results and on the first annual meeting in Istanbul from June 30th to July 2nd 2014;
- Newsletter 3, December 2014, gave visibility to the achievement of three important deliverables (D3.1, D7.1 and D9.1). Furthermore, the newsletter served as means of distribution of the Call for papers for the 2015 Mid - Term Conference, entitled: Being a Citizen in Europe (Zagreb, 2015);

- Newsletter 4, August 2015 reflected on the "Being a citizen in Europe" Conference held in Zagreb (29-30 June 2015), reported on the parallel workshop organized for students "Breaking Down Barriers: Future scenarios on youth and citizenship in 2030 – Youth and access to education, labor and political decision making" and on the Circus Europe Art Exhibition;
- Newsletter 5, January 2016, which presented the latest deliverables published and the most important results achieved so far; and
- Newsletter 6, February 2017, which contained an overview on the six Policy Briefs released by bEUcitizen Consortium members and presented the bEUcitizen Final Conference.

A 7th newsletter will be issued after the end of the project and will report on the bEUcitizen Final Conference "The Future of EU citizenship".

In addition, the newsletter was also used to circulate the Call for Papers for the two-day international and interdisciplinary conference "Being a Citizen in Europe", which took place on 29 - 30 June 2015 in Zagreb (Croatia).

2.4 POLICY BRIEFS

Seven policy briefs have been produced by the project to communicate policy relevant results and to attract the highest attention from policymaking and policy decision circles.

The purpose of the policy briefs is to raise awareness inside the decision makers and general public communities on themes related to the research topics of bEUcitizen. The content of the policy briefs consisted of short presentations, in the form of constructive policy recommendations, in which researchers could articulate their evidence-based conclusions.

2.4.1 STRUCTURE

The policy briefs were structured in accordance with the European Policy Brief template provided by the European Commission. In addition to the title and author, every policy brief is composed of 5 sections: introduction, key observations, policy implications and recommendations, research parameters and, to conclude, the project identity information.

The introduction helps the reader to link the title with the broad topic and the research purpose. The key observations are data on which the findings refer to. The policy implications and recommendations are the real core of the document: they are the analysis of the information available, they propose alternative evolution scenarios and suggest the best way to move forward. The section "research parameters" recalls the objective of the bEUcitizen project and its research methodology (multidisciplinary and multidimensional, combining normative and empirical disciplines). The project identity section states the general info of the project: name, coordinator, consortium members, funding scheme, duration and budget.

2.3.3 FREQUENCY AND DISTRIBUTION

Six policy briefs have been released in January 2017. At the time of writing, one policy brief is still under revision and it will be published by mid-April 2017.

All policy briefs have been published on the bEUcitizen website, under "Publications" and on the bEUcitizen Final Conference website, under About the conference > Additional materials.

Furthermore, they were circulated within our mailing list with Newsletter n.6, February 2017, and they will be printed and distributed at the final conference (26-28 April 2017, Brussels).

All policy briefs can be downloaded from the aforementioned online webpages.

EUROPEAN POLITICAL CITIZENSHIP 2030: POST-DEMOCRACY WITH POPULIST ACTIVISM OR AN INTEGRATED POLITICAL AND SOCIAL CITIZENSHIP?

Policy scenarios and recommendations from bEUcitizen, a research project on the barriers to realise and exercise citizenship rights by European Union citizens

Written by
Oliver Eberl & Sandra Seubert

December 2016

INTRODUCTION

This is a brief in the bEUcitizen policy brief series. The bEUcitizen project - funded by the European Union - set out to identify, investigate, discuss, and ameliorate the barriers to the active use of rights (and knowledge of duties, the concomitant to rights, in so far as there are any) by European citizens. The project aimed to provide a comparative overview and classification of the various barriers to the exercise of the rights and obligations of European Union citizens in the member states. Simultaneously, the project analysed whether and how such barriers can be overcome and the future opportunities and challenges the European Union and its member states face to further develop the idea and reality of European Union citizenship.

Drawing on research conducted during the project, this policy brief discusses the problems preventing European Union citizens from becoming active political citizens. European citizenship as active political citizenship has been underdeveloped from the start and is currently under strong pressure. Over time, European Union citizens seem to have lost enthusiasm for the European political process: Voter turnout in European Parliament elections decreased from 61,99% in 1979 to 42,61% in 2014. Attempts to transform elections for the European Parliament into a meaningful decision about the policies and the personnel of European institutions have been ineffective so far in two ways: On the one hand, they did not raise more interest in European affairs; on the other hand, and even more problematically, the 'Spitzenkandidaten'-experiment was overshadowed by the power struggle between national leaders and the European Parliament.

Although similar tendencies towards decreasing voter turnout can be observed in national elections, the trend of fading popular support is particularly alarming

3. DISSEMINATION ACTIVITIES

3.1 CONFERENCES AND WORKSHOPS

The most important channel for engaging with the Academic Community and Policy Makers was to organize, attend and present at high-level conferences and events.

If during the first years the main aim of these presentations was to introduce bEUcitizen to the Academic Community, in the last year, when results were available, conferences and seminars became the main ground to discuss findings, to collect suggestions and to exchange knowledge with other scholars and professionals.

Furthermore, conferences and national events proved to be important opportunities for involving local policy makers and civil society organizations.

Setting up an efficient structure for the dissemination activities that involve all consortium partners was one of the main goals. Part of this structure is that all partners in the consortium organized local dissemination events in their home countries, and, when possible, in their own language.

During the lifetime of the project four Annual Conferences and many seminars and workshops have been organized. Here below we list the most relevant ones.

3.1.1 ANNUAL CONFERENCES

Kick-off 2013 (Utrecht, The Netherlands)

The bEUcitizen kick-off event took place in Utrecht, 18-20 September 2013. Researchers from many different disciplines, representing 26 partner universities from the European Union and outside, met during the three day event.

The first day was an introductory day, giving people the chance to meet each other. The day ended with a round table discussion, the 'Open Forum', which was open for the general public. During this even important questions regarding European citizenship were raised and the Open Forum served as inspiration and input for the days ahead. Furthermore, representatives of the European Commission presented the 'EU Citizenship Report 2013', which had been freshly published.

During the second and third day of the Kick-Off, the work package coordinators met with their work package participants and discussed concepts, definitions, issues and planning. Overall the discussions were lively and they showed the strong commitment of the researchers, as well as the challenges faced ahead and innovative nature of the project by merging so many scientific disciplines. The Kick-Off was concluded by a plenary session where work packages reported on the work done and a number of administrative announcements and presentations.

1st general Assembly 2014 (Istanbul, Turkey)

The first bEUcitizen Annual Conference was held in Istanbul from June 29th to July 2nd 2014. During this three day conference, researchers discussed the content of the work, challenged each other, found fields of interest on which they could work together with a view to improve the academic output and effectiveness within the project. In this context, an open Forum discussion has been organised, to which a broad audience was actively invited.

2nd General Assembly and Mid-Term Conference 2015 (Zagreb, Croatia)

From June 29th until July 2nd 2015, the Faculty of Political Science and Hotel Dubrovnik in Zagreb (Croatia) hosted the 2015 bEUcitizen Annual Conference. The second consortium meeting included also a two-day international and interdisciplinary conference on the theme: "Being a citizen in Europe" (29-30 June). During this two day conference, researchers from the bEUcitizen research project and external scholars, participating in panel discussions, which were divided into four streams, talked about different aspects of European citizenship.

On Monday June 29 a parallel workshop ("Breaking down barriers: future scenarios on youth and citizenship in 2030 – Youth and access to education, labour and political decision-making") gave the opportunity to twenty students and young professionals to discuss different future scenarios for youth-citizenship. The outcomes were presented during the Conference closing.

The second part of the Conference was dedicated to the Work Package meetings, where researchers discussed the content of their work, the progress made and looked ahead, planning the activities for the coming two years.

3rd General Assembly 2016 (Oviedo, Spain)

The 2016 bEUcitizen consortium meeting took place in Oviedo (Spain) from June 29th until July 1st 2016. The main focus and purpose of the conference was to facilitate the integration of the findings in the different work packages and look ahead towards the end of the project, planning the books and the book series. In order for the consortium to really focus on their work in the bEUcitizen project, a choice was made not to invite outside keynote speakers to this last working conference for the project. Nevertheless, initiated by the PR department of the University of Oviedo, there proved to be much interest in the bEUcitizen project when we arrived in Oviedo. The first day of the conference, several (local) media were present at the conference location looking for interviews with bEUcitizen researchers. This resulted in media coverage for the project in newspapers and on television.

Final consortium meeting and final conference 2017 (Brussels, Belgium)

The final conference of the bEUcitizen project, titled “The Future of EU citizenship” will take place from 26 to 28 April 2016, in Brussels (at the time of writing it is being organized and a report on the event will be made available immediately after).

The final event will present and discuss the main results of the bEUcitizen project and its policy recommendations. Beside a number of participants of the bEUcitizen consortium, the following speakers will be involved in the panel debates: Kalypto Nicolaidis (St Antony's College - University of Oxford), Catherine Barnard (University of Cambridge), Richard Bellamy (European University Institute, Florence), Sascha Prechal (judge CJEU), Stefaan van der Jeught (CJEU and Vrije Universiteit Brussel), Herwig Verschueren (Antwerp), Agnes Jongerius (MEP), Catherine Woollard (ECRE) and Eve Geddie (PICUM).

During the conference there will be ample opportunity to engage in discussions with European institutions, academia and stakeholders. In particular, two lunch sessions tailored to policy makers and members of Parliament will be organised, which will focus on the implications of the bEUcitizen studies, their background and policy recommendations. As a kick off a future creating workshop on European Citizenship (The future of Europe - Exploring strategies for strengthening EU Citizenship) will be held during the first afternoon. Together with different groups of youth, members of the European Parliament, civil servants from several countries and NGO representatives, scenarios will be explored for strengthening EU citizenship in the 21st century.

This conference is open to all stakeholders interested in EU citizenship and this includes but is not limited to academics, policy makers, general public as well as representatives of all relevant organizations.

3.1.2 WORKSHOPS & OTHER EVENTS

“EU citizenship & rights” International Research Seminar 11 December 2014, Copenhagen (Denmark)

On 11 December 2014 the seminar “EU Citizenship and Rights” was organised at Copenhagen University, in a co-operation between the bEUcitizen project, University of Utrecht’s research group RENFORCE (Centre for Regulation and Enforcement of Europe) and the University of Copenhagen’s research centre CESEL (Centre for European Studies in Economic Law).

At the seminar, outstanding scholars of both universities and members of the bEUcitizen project discussed the different rights of EU citizens from various perspectives. For instance, the political dimension of EU citizenship was debated and the question was posed whether EU citizenship enhances political participation. The internal market as a driving force of EU citizenship was discussed, causing a lively debate on the constitutional nature of EU citizenship, as well as its market-origin. Furthermore, several presentations focused on the interplay of, and tension between, fundamental rights and EU citizenship, for instance in the context of criminal law and EU criminal policy. In the last session, the Dano case was extensively discussed, raising the question about the balance between EU citizenship rights and the protection of national welfare systems. Finally, the last presentations focused on the role of language, either as a barrier for EU citizens and as a tool of the Court of Justice in its reasoning.

The seminar showcased the outstanding research done in this field by the researchers affiliated to the bEUcitizen project, RENFORCE and CESEL. The presentations provided food for thought and triggered a lively debate on the rights and the nature of EU citizenship.

Seminar 'Current issues facing European citizenship' organized by bEUcitizen and the Government of Catalonia, 5 May 2015, Barcelona (Spain)

European citizenship, created by the 1992 Maastricht Treaty which came into effect that same year, placed importance for the first time on people and their rights and duties. Albeit to a limited degree, the Treaty, and later on the European Charter of Fundamental Rights, defined a core set of rights and duties that make up European citizenship. However, this citizenship, which includes, for example, the right to free movement and residence throughout the EU, may be limited by the policies of member states, which ultimately are the ones who decide the European Union's lines of political, economic and social action. Furthermore, the deficits of democratic legitimacy that blight the European institutions highlight the need to introduce new structures or to modify said institutions to bring them closer to citizens and to channel forms of participation that might increase democratic quality.

Under the title "Qüestions actuals sobre la ciutadania europea" (Current issues facing European citizenship) the Catalan Government's Institut d'Estudis Autònoms (Autonomic Studies Institute) in collaboration with bEUcitizen organized this seminar, which was attended by about 50 people, including university professors from different disciplines (including the bEUcitizen coordinator Sybe De Vries and other consortium members), senior civil servants and officials from the Government of Catalonia and undergraduate and doctorate students.

A roundtable on 'National identities and European Citizenship: A legitimacy conflict?' 7 May 2015, Barcelona (Spain)

Coordinated by Jacint Jordana, the roundtable, organized by the Institut Barcelona d'Estudis Internacionals (IBEI), brought together Francis Cheneval from the University of Zurich, Carme Colomina from the newspaper ARA and Juan Díez Medrano from the Universidad Carlos III.

Panelists discussed what we can expect from the European political citizenship, and whether barriers can prevent identity and national consolidation. To this end, the experience of Switzerland was brought to the table as an example of the challenges and expectations of an EU citizenship, which was then combined with an analysis of EU citizens' awareness of their rights and support of EU citizenship. These various dimensions were critically assessed within the current institutional and socio-political context, which is marked by existing conflicts between legitimacy and identity at the EU level, on the one hand, and the preferences and identities of member states on the other, as clearly portrayed today by the Greek crisis.

The final question and answer session enabled the public to engage in closer dialogue with the panelists.

International Conference "Making Free Movement Work" 15 June 2015, London (UK)

The aim of this event was to provide a factual overview of free movement in the context of the UK Government's stated commitment to holding a referendum on Britain's continued membership of the EU within the next two years. Presenters engaged with the theme from the perspectives of the EU regulatory framework through to those engaged with local service delivery and EU citizens' rights. The speakers, among which bEUcitizen researchers Martin Seeleib-Kaiser and Frans Pennings, prompted a wide-ranging discussion with members of the audience, who brought their own academic, frontline and policymaking perspectives to the conversation.

The report of the event can be downloaded here.

Breaking Down Barriers: Future scenarios on youth and citizenship in 2030 – Youth Side Event at the bEUcitizen 2015 Mid-Term Conference 29/30 June 2015, Zagreb

On the 29th of June, a group of 20 students and young professionals from Croatia, Slovenia and the Netherlands discussed different future scenarios for youth-citizenship. They analyzed and discussed the present situation and determined what they regard as important for youth. In addition, they looked at what different ways the European societies, and especially Croatia, might develop and which consequences these would involve. How could the world look in 2030?

It took five steps to answer this question. First of all, the youth-participants determined six important values for youth citizenship after which they came up with four driving forces in society. Based on these forces, four future-world scenarios were imagined. These extreme, but possible situations were given a name and were assessed based on the aforementioned values. Last but not least, the participants had to think of a possible repertoire of action to make sure that, even in these extreme worlds, the important values be achievable for youth.

Workshop “Barriers’ to the exercise of EU citizenship’s rights. Factual and legal analysis” 12 May 2016, Trento (Italy)

On Thursday 12 May 2016 the University of Trento (Faculty of Law), in collaboration with Utrecht University, organized the workshop “Barriers’ to the exercise of EU citizenship’s rights. Legal and factual analysis”. The research carried out in the bEUcitizen project shown a variety of barriers to EU citizenship in different fields of the law. The Trento seminar therefore aimed at stimulating an interdisciplinary and comparative dialogue among experts – especially young scholars – and participants’ critical thinking skills and ideas on the bEUcitizen key concept of “barrier” and on different kinds of hindrances, with the purpose of a scientific and critical categorization of them.

To properly deal with all these issues, the seminar was divided into three sessions: a number of lectures given by invited key note speakers – among them, the project coordinator prof. Sybe de Vries; and two round tables focusing on two opposite, but to some extent interrelated, perspectives: “from legal towards factual barriers” and “from factual towards legal barriers”.

Workshop “Beyond Renationalization and Parlamentarization. What ways to overcome the EU’s crisis of democratic representation” 23-24 June 2016, Frankfurt (Germany)

Organized by members of the bEUcitizen project at Goethe University Frankfurt this international workshop discussed the future of democratic representation in the EU. It brought together international scholars from political theory with EU scholars. The workshop participants set out to put established views of both the concept of democratic representation and the nature of the EU-polity on trial to explore possible ways out of the EU’s crisis of democratic representation. They addressed the problems of the current institutional set up of the EU under the heading of the two alternatives: returning to the intergovernmental mode of cooperation between nation states (renationalization) or a full-fledged federalization of the EU (parliamentarization). With both ways having their specific problems, the question remains how a viable system of democratic representation in the EU beyond renationalization and parliamentarization could look like.

Workshop “Urban governance and the future of European Citizenship” (Oxford, UK)

This Workshop was organised by Maarten Prak and Josephine van Zeben and took place on 17 and 18 February 2017 at Worcester College, University of Oxford (UK).

The workshop combined a historical perspective on the role of the nation-state with a bottom-up view of the European Union, focusing on sub-state actors, in order to provide additional insights as to the future of European citizenship. The initial discussion point was that new perspectives on European citizenship and governance are urgently needed, especially now that the British referendum has highlighted the level of disenchantment of citizens with the European project. Apart from the free movement of EU citizens, the most widespread grievance refers to a ‘disconnect’ between citizens in their local and national communities and the European ‘technocrats’ in Brussels. Further centralization at the European level is likely to reinforce, rather than lessen such concerns. Over the course of this two day workshop, the aim was to draw up an inventory of the ‘state-of play’ in connection with local governance and citizenship, to exchange views, perspectives and relevant data, and to develop a shared agenda and framework for future interdisciplinary work in this area. Concretely, the resulting collection of papers from this workshop is foreseen to be published as a special issue in a top journal in citizenship or local government studies.

3.2 PARTICIPATION TO EXTERNAL EVENTS

The bEUcitizen community participated in many external events related to the topic of the projects. They were a precious opportunity to further spread the research outcomes and interact with different stakeholders.

From the very beginning, all our researchers have been asked to keep track of the activities undertaken that represented a mean to circulate our project and to create awareness about it.

Annex 1 (Table on dissemination activities) gives an overview of the main, very successful dissemination activities performed during the entire project lifecycle. These activities aimed at promoting the project, both through the direct dissemination of research results and referring to bEUcitizen during other events. Our researchers took part in different conferences, addressing a public of experts. But they also lectured to students and school children. Some researchers have published in scientific journals, referring directly to bEUcitizen.

The table is structured as follows: details of the consortium member, researcher who carried out the activity, description of the activity, further information about the activity itself; target group. Furthermore, all listed activities are accompanied by evidences, available upon request or by following the links provided.

3.3 PUBLICATION OF PROJECTS RESULTS: “INTERDISCIPLINARY PERSPECTIVES ON EU CITIZENSHIP” BOOK SERIES

In addition to the publication of articles in scientific journals, which guarantees an effective dissemination of specific project results, allowing to target groups of experts in the sectors addressed by bEUcitizen (see table 1, Annex), the results coming from the different Work Packages have been collected in a book series: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on EU Citizenship.

The series looks into the main issues relating to EU citizenship, and citizenship in general, from different angles and from a multi-disciplinary approach. It approaches and analyses the concept of EU citizenship in a coherent and integrative manner, yet from a set of unique and distinct perspectives. The point of departure is that citizenship is not merely a legal notion of rights produced by statute and/or case law, but something that has developed and develops in the interchange between rules and practices, between law, politics and society. So studying citizenship issues requires an interdisciplinary approach, which is offered by the interdisciplinary team of contributors to the series from various relevant disciplines including: law, philosophy, history, sociology, political science, economics and policy studies. This important series addresses both the normative and empirical dimensions of citizenship, and will further stir the debate on citizenship questions in Europe and beyond.

The audience for the book series is varied. The book series will appeal first of all to academics and students in quite a variety of academic disciplines. The latter are organized in relative large academic associations, in which many members of our research team actively participate, in some cases also in their leadership. Hence the book series will be promoted through their communication channels: conferences, email-networks, websites, etc.

Furthermore, given the fact that 'citizenship right issues' figure prominently on the EU-policymaking agenda, the book series addresses practitioners and policymakers in European institutions as well as in the national political, administrative and policy advisory institutions in the different EU Member States, and especially their aides, commercial policy advisors, and the numerous lawyers and lobbyist organizations in Brussels.

Finally, the books might be used in academic courses on a variety of topics and in quite a variety of academic disciplines: law, history, geography, philosophy, political science, social policy, sociology, socio-legal studies or economics.

4. EU CITIZENSHIP TEACHING PACKAGES FOR SECONDARY SCHOOL PUPIL

In this chapter we report on the teaching packages for secondary school pupils in the age group of 14-16/17, which are available on the bEUcitizen website <http://beucitizen.eu/teaching-packages/> and which will be shared on the website https://europa.eu/teachers-corner/content/homepage_en

More attention for EU Citizenship is relevant for several reasons. It first refers to the set of civil, political, economic and social rights that all citizens of EU countries possess in addition to the rights that come with their national citizenship. Secondly, it refers to the membership of a European political community in which each citizen of an EU country can participate actively; next to or intertwined with, being active in a local or national political community.

One of the conclusions from a comparative study of civic education in 7 EU-countries (D8.10 bEUcitizen), is that adolescents are hardly educated in what their EU citizenship rights are, nor are they trained in competencies to realize or enforce these rights. Parallel to this, young adults leave secondary school without being taught the civic and political competencies to participate in the variety of political communities on different levels they belong to.

EU citizenship is relevant when you stay in your country of origin and in the town you grew up in. For instance, in one's role as a consumer. Furthermore, political participation manifests itself on the local level in different forms. On the one hand, during elections: local, regional, national or European. On the other hand, in many forms of collective action by citizens who organize themselves in protest movements, around opinion leaders in the public sphere, interest groups and NGOs. Often when there is a European dimension, the action starts at the local level. For that reason, it is important that citizens both understand their rights and that a more lively European public sphere emerges. As a result, we choose to develop teaching materials for secondary school pupils that contribute to the EU dimension of their civic competencies.

Five teaching packages have been developed:

1. Getting my rights: Europeanization at home
2. Lobbying and getting in touch with the EU
3. Organizing our interest
4. Travelling around
5. Advising the EU in solving Global Problems

The overall goal of these teaching packages is to teach secondary school pupils (aged 14 – 16/17) about EU citizenship. We want to focus on two aspects in particular:

1. EU citizenship is directly related to your daily life and you can benefit from it.
2. Choices made on the level of the EU affect your daily life and you can influence these choices, together with others close to you, as the EU is only five or less handshakes away from any EU citizen.

With these teaching packages we pursue three concrete goals. We want the pupils:

- a) to discover what rights they have as EU citizens, both during their daily life at home, and when traveling around;
- b) to develop the necessary competencies to get access to, realise and/or enforce their rights;
- c) to develop the civic and political competencies to participate in the variety of political communities on different levels they belong to in order to make their voices heard in decision-making on all levels.

This implies that the teaching packages depart from the perspective of the secondary school pupil in his or her daily life and local habitat.

The complete outline of the teaching packages is provided in Deliverable 11.6.

5. OTHER DISSEMINATION TOOLS

While drawing up the dissemination strategy for the bEUcitizen project, we realized that there are also other powerful tools to communicate academic results to the wider public, as short videos and visual art.

We actively looked into possibilities to work together with artists in order to engage in beyond the state of the art of the project's findings, in particular where tensions between various citizens' rights are concerned.

We worked together with Beatrice Ngalula Kabutakapua, journalist, producer and researcher in the field of migration from Africa, and with Circus Europe. This cooperation does not only make our research more accessible for the (Young) European citizen, it should also help Policy Makers in their understanding of the different tensions and barriers that are still persistent in the European citizenship.

VIDEOS

By the end of the project we will publish 5 short videos that address the challenges the EU and its citizens are facing. Each documentary uses a simplified language and approach in order to be understandable for a wider audience. The main characteristic of the produced video are of simplicity, clarity and entertainment.

1. Insiders – Outsiders. This video focus on why the distinction between “Insiders” and “Outsiders” matters and on what the consequences of this distinction are.
2. Gender & Generations
3. Brexit. This video tries to answer the questions on what led to the BREXIT vote and on its consequences for UK and EU citizens.
4. Rivalry of Rights. This video will show how certain citizenship rights conflict.
5. Future scenarios of citizenship. What could citizenship look like in 2030? 4 possible scenarios will be developed, looking into the future. This video will be based on the workshop “The future of Europe - Exploring strategies for strengthening EU Citizenship” and on the backstage of the bEUcitizen final conference.

CIRCUS EUROPE

Circus Europe is a project by visual artist Machteld van Buren and poet Peter van Lier.

In the large collection of collages “Circus Europe”, Machteld illustrates how the struggle for survival is being waged in various European countries. Some countries are depicted as an animal: the body consists of a map onto which the realistic head of an animal has been superimposed. Other countries are the playground for animals, performing acts that are indicative of how each nation functions. More information on Circus Europe can be found here: <http://circus-europe-exhibitions.blogspot.nl/>.

On Tuesday 30 July 2015 the exposition of Circus Europe was opened at the Zagreb Conference of bEUcitizen at the Faculty of Political Science of the University of Zagreb, from 29 June till 2 July 2015. During the opening session Hanneke van Eijken (Dutch poet and researcher of the BEUcitizen project), Peter van Lier (Dutch poet) and Ana Brnardić (poet from Croatia) read their poems inspired by Europe and the paintings of Europe made by Machteld van Buren (visual artist). The exhibition was open to visit during the whole conference and many researcher enjoyed the paintings and poems on Europe.

Collages of the Circus Europe art project will be hosted also at the bEUcitizen final conference (April 26-28, Brussels).

6. CONCLUSIONS

This Dissemination Report has provided the complete overview of the dissemination activities implemented in the scope of the bEUcitizen project, in accordance with the provisions of the Dissemination Plan and the Dissemination Strategy issued at the beginning of the project.

The achievements pointed out in the document show that the project has successfully disseminated its results and reached a high visibility within the scientific and political community. The effectiveness of dissemination activities has been ensured by defining appropriate target groups, allowing the most relevant audience to be reached with the most appropriate dissemination tools.

The main bEUcitizen dissemination instruments and activities include:

- a dedicated project website (www.beucitizen.eu) allowing for fast and easy communication of the most relevant information and news to a wide audience;
- a newsletter, which has been issued biannually during the project to inform relevant stakeholders about the key achievements and the next activities planned;
- a number of 7 Policy Briefs have been released during the project with the aim to spread policy scenarios and recommendations;
- a series of 5 teaching packages for secondary school pupils in the age group of 14-16/17, which will be distributed via the project website;
- public workshops and events have also been organized with the main purpose of communicating results, getting potential stakeholders directly involved in the work, but also for gathering feedback about the activities performed by the Consortium;
- representatives of the bEUcitizen Consortium have attended external public events presenting the activities performed and the results achieved by the project;

Furthermore, in order to reach a wider public in a more direct and easily understandable way, bEUcitizen cooperated with visual artist Machteld van Buren and with journalist and producer Beatrice Kabutakapua and made use of the visual arts to raise awareness and spark the debate on the current problems the European Union is facing.

Finally, the most relevant outcomes have been collected in a book series, which will be published in September 2017 by Edward Elgar Publishing, and will be presented during the Final Conference, to be held in Brussels on 26-28 April 2017.
