Invisible Men: The injured lives of Afghan interpreters

The Contesting Governance Platform looks forward to hosting a seminar by Dr. Sara de Jong.

In this seminar, Dr. Sara de Jong and Dr. Aditi Saraf will discuss the position of- and silence around the position of Afghan interpreters. More specifically, Dr. Sara de Jong's paper will be topic of conversation, which analyses how injured Afghan interpreters navigate both military and Afghan civilian masculinities.

The seminar will be followed by a borrel at Café Hofman.

Dr. Sara de Jong

Senior Lecturer at the Department of Politics at the University of York (UK). Her interests include (post)colonialism, race and racism, feminist politics, and the politics of NGOs and civil society, in particular in the fields of migration and gender. Since 2017, she has been researching the claims to rights and protection by Afghan and Iraqi interpreters and their advocates in the UK, US, Canada, Germany, France and the Netherlands.
