

4. Belle van Zuylen Hall (Belle van Zuylenzaal)

History

Belle van Zuylen attended lectures at the university. Later, she became known as a European author under the name of Madame de Charrière and published her first novel Le Noble at the age of 20. She did not confine herself to a single genre, publishing many stage plays, operas, novels and pamphlets. Her work deriving from the French Revolution was of particular note, which reflected her political and social engagement. She corresponded with many intellectuals of her time such as James Boswell, David Hume and Benjamin Constant.
