Prof. Mirko Noordegraaf is full professor of Public Management at the Utrecht School of Governance (USG), Utrecht University. Since 2018 he is vice dean for Societal Impact of the faculty of Law, Economics & Governance and responsible for continuing education. He analyzes the professionalism of public managers -in government, police, health and education- in relation to professionalism and occupational changes at work floors. He also studies changes in professional behavior at work floors, with particular emphasis on ‘organizing’ and ‘connective professionalism’, i.e. new forms of professionalism that stimulate professionals to (re)organize themselves and their work.
